

Let's start with a little bit of history. In the early days of the internet, it was just a place where you could find information. But now, it's become a place where you can do almost anything. And that's where the problem lies. When you're online, you're always being tracked. And that's not always in a good way.

There is a lot of talk about the "digital revolution" and how it's changing the way we live. But what if it's just making things worse? What if it's just making us more isolated and more dependent on technology?

A lot of people are talking about the "digital divide" and how it's separating the haves from the have-nots. But what if it's just making things worse? What if it's just making us more isolated and more dependent on technology?

One of the biggest problems is the way we're using technology. We're using it to keep us entertained, but we're not using it to help us learn or to help us grow. We're using it to keep us from thinking for ourselves.
